WISHING YOU HEALTH AND HAPPINESS FOR THE UPCOMING HOLIDAY SEASON

This snowy scene by Maritime folk artist Maud Lewis (1901–1970) captures many of winter's most pleasing features: forest green trees; horse-drawn sleigh rides; and the landscape covered in a blanket of snow. Lewis's images are celebrated for their extraordinary sense of wonder, and the generosity of spirit that she brought to the representation of her community in rural Nova Scotia—characteristics that resonate especially during this time of year, when friends and family come together in the spirit of the season. With the promise of 2023 just on the horizon, we are looking forward to sharing more art-infused initiatives and curriculum connections with you in the New Year. In the meantime, we are wishing teachers and school communities across the country a joyful, restful, and restorative break over the coming weeks.

From all of us at the ACI Education Program, Happy Holidays.

About the Art Canada Institute

Launched in 2013, the Art Canada Institute is the only national institution whose mandate is to promote the study of an inclusive multi-vocal Canadian art history to as broad an audience as possible, in both English and French, within Canada and internationally. The ACI works with more than fifty of Canada's leading art historians, curators, and visual culture experts who are dedicated to the creation of authoritative original content on the people, themes, and topics that have defined Canadian art history.

We are creating a central digital resource to tell the world about Canada's most important works of art and where they are located. By functioning as an online art museum, a digital library, and an interactive Canadian art encyclopedia, the ACI is an indispensable resource on Canada's visual heritage.
